

Curriculum

The School of International Peace Studies conducts research and education regarding various types of dispute and social conflict among nations and among non-state entities, which have been covered as subjects in the fields of International Relations and Peace Studies. In its educational program, the School adopts English as its official language, and conducts small-group education, placing emphasis on each student's academic development. The curriculum of the School of International Peace Studies aims to develop students' viewpoints of Global Citizenship that permit both tolerant attitudes toward diverse values and their own sense of value to be established. Moreover, the School will also nurture highly skilled professionals with high level academic knowledge and skills in International Peace Studies.

The curriculum of the School of International Peace Studies comprises the following three segments:

○ Core Courses (14 credits in total)

International Relations Theory	(4 credits)
Peace and Global Citizenship	(4 credits)
Seminar I (Research Design)	(2 credits)
Seminar II (Research Conduct)	(2 credits)
Seminar III (Master's Thesis)	(2 credits)

○ Compulsory Elective Courses (6 or more credits each in International Relations and Peace Studies areas)

◆ International Relations area

Theory of European Integration	(2 credits)
International History of Imperialism	(2 credits)
Region and Institution Building in the Asia Pacific	(2 credits)
International Political Economy	(2 credits)
Public Policy for Global-Regional Development	(2 credits)
Political Economy of International Trade and Finance	(2 credits)
State Building in Africa	(2 credits)

◆ Peace Studies area

Civil War and Peace Processes	(2 credits)
Ethnic Conflict and Resolution	(2 credits)
Global Justice and Pragmatism	(2 credits)
Human Security and Human Rights	(2 credits)
Critical Race and Gender Studies	(2 credits)
Women's Studies	(2 credits)
Philosophy and Human Rights	(2 credits)
Globalization and Migration	(2 credits)

○ Elective Courses

Internship I	(2 credits)
Internship II	(2 credits)