As a child, Alain Robert was afraid of heights. One day, when he was 12, he returned home from school. At the front door of his building, he looked for his keys. He didn't have them. It was 3:30 p.m., and his parents worked until 6:00 p.m. Robert looked at his apartment on the eighth floor. He saw an open window. He closed his eyes and 16 himself climbing the building. When he opened his eyes, he told himself, "I can do it." Fifteen minutes later, he was in his house, and his 17 of heights was gone.

Today, Robert still climbs buildings. In 2004, he climbed Taipei 101, which was the tallest building in the world at that time. Then, in 2011 he climbed the Burj Khalifa* tower in Dubai. To reach the top of a building, Robert usually uses only his hands and special shoes. 18, to climb the Burj Khalifa tower, he was made to wear safety ropes, too.

Robert climbs as a hobby. He also does it to make money for 19. For example, he climbs to help children and the homeless. When he climbs, he wants to send a message to people. If you have a dream — something you really want to do — it can be real. But you must be 20 and keep trying. If something bad happens, don't give up. Close your eyes and tell yourself, "I can do it."

Alfred Bernhard Nobel was born on October 21, 1833 in Sweden. He invented a powerful explosive* named “dynamite” in 1887. It was said that Alfred Nobel invented dynamite at a perfect moment in time. At that time many countries were beginning to build railroads and tunnels, so they needed a safe powerful explosive to construct railroad tracks through mountains. People also needed dynamite to 36 stone in order to construct buildings and roads. Alfred Nobel invented dynamite for these peaceful purposes. Moreover, he believed that if all countries had the same powerful weapons, they would see how impossible war was, and wars would end. In fact, 37 this was a popular idea of his day.

However, unfortunately, people started calling Nobel “The Dynamite King” or “A Salesman of Death.” He was very upset about the image that the world had of him, but he did not know what to do about it. He thought about his 38 for years. He wanted to think of the best way for people to use his fortune of $9 million after his death.

Then in 1895, a young man named Salomon August Andree made plans for a trip to reach the North Pole. People all over the world were very excited about Andree's journey, including Nobel. When Nobel read about Andree's plan in the newspaper, he came up with an idea. He finally knew what to do with his fortune. He wrote his will, and then he announced that he wanted people to use all of his 39 for an annual award as an honor to the leaders of science, literature and world peace. He stated that these leaders would be men or women of any nation.

Alfred Nobel died on December 10, 1896, at the age of 63. He was not married and had no children. People all over the world wondered who was going to get Nobel's money. 40 They were amazed when they learned of Alfred Nobel's plan to award annual prizes in the fields of physics, chemistry, medicine, literature and peace. The first Nobel Prizes were awarded in 1901, and they very soon became the greatest honor that a person could receive in these fields. In 1969, an award for economics was added. In this way, Alfred Nobel 41 established the Nobel Prize, and the world thinks of him the way he wanted to be remembered: “Alfred Nobel, a man of peace.”
